A Brief History

The Round room was built in 1821 for the much-anticipated visit of King George IV. Later the Room was to be the stage for the most important moment in the conception of the Republic of Ireland. On the 21st of January 1919, the First Dail Eireann was held in the Round Room.

In 1921, 100 years after its construction to receive the English Monarch, it was in this room that the Anglo-Irish Treaty of 1921 was ratified. It was the signing of this treaty that Michael Collins considered the signing of his own death warrant, it was also the treaty that created the Irish Free State, and that led to the Irish Civil War

Gala Events

The Round Room has become the premier venue for Dublin's most prestigious gala dinners, charity balls and award ceremonies. It's rapidly growing reputation for top class service, cuisine and creative event management has brought some of the highest profile events in Dublin to Dawson Street. Located on one of Dublin City's premier streets, it is adjacent to the Lord Mayors residence and parallel to Dublin's busiest shopping thoroughfare, Grafton Street.

As the name suggests, the Round Room is a circular room, 30 metres in diameter with a domed roof. The shape and versatility of this room create a unique and spectacular venue for a gala event. A semi circular balcony overlooks the Round Room and provides an elegant and impressive area for your drinks reception where guests can relax and admire the view over the Round Room.
